

To Whom It May Concern:

Living in a city that many consider to be one of the best places to live in the country I entered our relationship with Medicus Partners with some trepidation regarding the value that a retained firm could add. However, after working closely with our consultant on several critical searches for faculty based positions I have come to rely on him not just as a recruiter but as a search partner that is an extension of our graduate medical education organization. In addition to the timely and consistent results he delivers on the searches we retain him for he also provides incredibly valuable insight on search and candidate strategy for other search efforts. The feedback on Medicus Partners from our physicians he interacts with internally and the physicians that interview with us is very consistent...professional, honest, knowledgeable, insightful and “they add value” throughout the process. Lastly, our consultant is a joy to work with. He keeps a consistent message coming from our organization.
